Attack Simultaneous With the Bombings

By George C. Wilson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (WP).-The United States attempted a daring rescue operation Friday by landing a team of Army and Air Force personnel near the North Vietnamese prisoner of war camp at Sontay, 20 miles west of Hanoi, but failed to find any American captives there, the Pentagon disclosed today.

Defense Secretary Mclvin R. Laird said he recommended the mission after hearing that American prisoners were dying in Hanoi'a camps. The rescue team, according to those who led it, took the North Vietnamese "completely by surprise" and flew out of the area with only minor casualties including one man wounded by an AK-47 automatic rifle shot.

Mr. Laird said that the North Vietnamese fired "more than 30" SAM-2 anti-aircraft missiles which may have exploded around Hanoiprompting claims that the United States had bombed there. No Munitions Drop

An Excerpt From Text

'Khrushchev Remembers'

These are reminiscences attributed by Life magazine to Nikita Khrushchev concerning the excesses of Stalin's collectivization of agriculture in 1930.

COLLECTIVIZATION was begun the year before I was transferred from the Ukraine. but it wasn't until after I started work in Moscow that I began to suspect its real effects on the rural population-and it wasn't until many years later that I realized the scale of the starvation and repression which accompanied collectivization as it was carried out under Stalin. My first glimpse of the truth was in 1930, when the party cell at the Industrial Academy tried to get rid of me by sending ms out into the country on a business trip. The academy sponsored the Stalin collective which I was supposed to deliver money which we had collected for the purchase of agricultural

Starving Farmers

We spent only a few days at the collective farm and were appalled at the conditions there. The farmers were starying to death. We called a meeting to present the money which we'd brought them. Most of the workers on this collective farm were drawn from the Chuvash population, so we had to speak to them through a translator. When we told them that the money was allocated for farm equipment, they told us they weren't interested in equipment—what they wanted was bread. They literally begged us to give them food.

I'd had no idea that things were this bad. We'd been living under the illusion promoted by Prayda that collectivization was proceeding smoothly and everything was fine in the countryside.

Then, without warning, Stalin delivered his famous speech laying the blame for the exactive local party members. I remember being bothered by the thought: If everything has been going as well on the collective farms as Stalin has been telling us, what's the reason for the speech?

Red Army Farmhands

One of my friends told me that there are strikes going on in the Ukraine, and that Red. Army soldiers had to be mobilized to weed the sugar beet crop. I was horrified. You couldn't expect Red Army soldiers, most of whom had never seen a sugar beet and didn't give a damn if they ever waw one again, to do the job right.' Naturally the sugar beet crop-was lost Subsequently the word got around that famine had broken out in the Ukraine. I Ukraine in 1929, when food had been plentiful and cheap.

Years later (Anastas) Mikoyan told me that Comrade Demchenko, who was then first secretary of the Kiev regional committee, came to see him in Moscow. Here's what Demchenko said: "Anastas Ivanovich, does Comrade Stalin-for that matter, does arryone in the Politburo—know what's happening in the Ukraine? A train recently pulled into Kiev loaded with corpses of people who had starved to death. It had picked up corpses all the way from Poltava to Kiev. I think somebody had better inform Stalin about this situation."

Perhaps we'll never know how many people perished directly as a result of collectivization or indirectly, as a result of Stalin's eagerness to hlame its failure on others. But two things are certain: First, the Stalin brand of collectivization brought us nothing but inlsery and brutality; and second Sta-lin played the decisive role in the leadership of our country at the time. If we were looking for someone to hold responsible, we could lay the blame squarely on Stalin's own

Filibustering in Guinea

It says a good deal about the regime of President Sekou Touré that his country could be invaded from the sea by a force that was variously ascribed to the Portuguese and to internal enemies of bis regime. And it says rather more about the present state of the world that this myeterious and violent event caused comparatively little excitement outside Guinea. The Security Council met. ordered the invaders to cease and desist, and sent a team to investigate. Portogal denied any involvement. And shooting went on in Conskry, accompanied by communiques and much speculation. But that was about the extent of international reaction.

President Toure's prickly nationalism has made few alliee for him abroad; his economic difficultiee have led to large-scale emigration from Guinea. A thorn in the side of Portuguese Guinea, and frequently at odds with other African statee, he has acquired a variety of enemies, enough to make nearly any theory about the source of the invasion plausible,

Apart from the special vulnerabilities of Guinea's president, however, the incident is revealing in that it is another of the fillbustering expeditions that have been so common in the post-World War II scene. The term "filibuster" (a corruption of the Dutch word for freehooter) was originally applied to pirates; it then became common in describing almost any kind of private war-notably those venturee undertaken by citizens of the United States against Latin American governments in the 19th century. Bot as a reasonable degree of international order was imposed-or at least when international disorder was confined to the acts of sovereign states—the word "filibuster" was largely relegated to the practice by minorities in the United States Senate of talking a bill

The widespread anarchy that followed World War II led to a revival of filibustering in the old sense, although the word was seldom used, and the filibueterers themselves represented a medley of simple mercenaries, dedicated revolutionaries and eub rosa agents of various states and partiee. Cuba has been the scene of several filibustering expeditions of various degrees of euecess; Africa has proved an even more fertile field. Hijacking is another version of the eame general type of activity, showing the same range of motivation, from mere greed to high idealism, and creating the same kind of international uncertainty.

Whatever the outcome of the raid into Guinea, and whatever the impulses behind it. filiboetering deserves the attention of the community of nations. The issues may not seem to represent the same clear threat to international commerce and stability that hijacking has done, because seizing a commercial plane in flight obviously poses a danger to every nation flying, or being served by, aircraft. But essentially the two acte are similar: essentially they represent the decay of order; essentially they call for international policing.

A Khrushchev Puzzle

Life's publication yesterday of the first part of what are claimed to be Khrushchev's memoire is certain to provoke intensive international discussion. The Soviet government bas already indicated concern about the matter by baving Tass issue a denialallegedly by Nikita Khrushchev-of the material's authenticity, but the denial is so curiously worded that it does not dispose of

The portrait of Stalin which emerges from this first installment is a familiar one to those who have read Khrushchev's originally secret speech of February, 1956, as well as Milovan Djilas's "Conversations with Stalin" and Svetlana Alliluyeva's "Twenty Letters to a Friend." Fascinating and repulsive as the ordinary reader will find this description of Stalin, the account—even if authentic adds only details to the professional historian's knowledge of the tyrant who built the Soviet colossus at such hage human cost. Politically, the chief impact of this publication will be to remind the world that many of Stalin's victims-Trotsky, Bukharin, Rykov. Zinoviev and numerous others-are still reviled in official Soviet history.

A final verdict on the importance of this manuscript cannot be based on this brief. first extract. But even now the question of authenticity emerges as central. The curious errors of fact are perhaps explicable as the result of an old man's failing memory, but there are less innocent alternative explanations. Back in the 1950s a volume allegedly containing the diary of the late Soviet Commissar of Foreign Affairs Maxim Litvinov was published in the United States with an introduction by the eminent British historian E. H. Carr. Nevertheless there is widespread belief that those memoirs were concocted abroad and this newspaper's reviewers implied that they had actually been written by a defected Soviet diplomat, Grigory Bessedovsky. Analogous suspicions are also about Laird's assurance that likely to becloud these alleged Khrushchev memoirs unless Life states more convincingly than it has to date bow and from whom it own government. But it was that received the manuscript and why it is so government, to take a recent confident that its author was Nikita S. example of deception, that said it Khrushchev,

International Opinion

A Dusty Answer

Neither the world press, nor the governments, nor the UN, nor UNESCO appear to realize the extent of this tragedy. What has the UN done immediately? What has this so-called "organization" of the nations of the world undertaken at once? Has its secretary-general thought of convening the representativee of all the states in the world to devise an international action to he undertaken and coordinated?

In the absence of the UN, have the rich statee of the West thought of meeting for demonstrating to the East what they are capable of doing? No. One goes to the moon and excavates it. This is astounding. But one doee not go to so much trouble for a million men in deadly peril. This is even more astounding.

-From La Nation (Paris).

Trade Protectionism

The passage of the trade hill by the House of Representatives is a mark of the rising tide of protectionism and is a warning of trouble ahead. The Senate has yst to adopt the parallel measure and is probably even more narrowly divided on its merits than was the House. There is therefore no certainty that the law go through in its present

In any case the narrowness of the House majority would give President Nixon sound reason for vetoing the bill, which in its present form the administration dislikes. But the President has shown himself susceptible to political pressuree, and the plain fact is that the United States economy is still depressed. There is just too much unemployment at every level. People are being really hurt. Emotion tende at such times to be far stronger than reason.

-From the Times (London). Peking Outside the Door

China will enter the United Nations when Hytten in your issue of Oct. 20. the General Assembly no longer demands a majority of two-thirds to vots in favor. The prestige of the United Nations doubtless has nothing to gain in shifting this question of a basic problem toward those of procedure.

Meanwhile, the largest country of Asia will stay by the door of the UN. As, for other reasons, does the biggest economic power in Europe, West Germany. From this double paradox, the prestige of the international organization no longer has anything to gain. -From Le Monde (Paris).

Western Weakness

Russian tank superiority on the European front is now 4 to 1; at the last count it was 3 to 1. NATO's inferiority in infantry and aircraft is only slightly less, and is certainly increasing. Russia has already outetripped the United States in land-based missiles. Now Mr. Laird says that at the current rate she will be ahead in what is at present America's greatest standby—the nnclear missile submarine-in four or five years. For the moment, in the face of Russia's merciless—toward the rest of the world and toward her own people—expansion of military strength, the West is weakest where it should be strongest. This is in the defense of densely populated industrial Europe, where grosely inadequate forces have no room or indeed capability to

PARIS—In examining styles seen for some time, the dresses are too much overloaded with ruches, buttons, flowers, laces, embroidery and furs, whose simultaneous use is often a detriment to the freedom of the lines. The large houses have hence had a tendency to diminish the fullness of skirts and sleeves, and have abandoned the use of long-sleeved "wristlets" previously employed to make the band appear

LONDON-The recent wave of Irisb terrorism broke into the House of Commons yesterday, vis-a-vis the Dublin massacres. Something like a free-for-all developed as Joseph Devlin, member for West Belfast and leading champion of the Irish cause, attempted to speak. He was shouted down, and twice forced to bis seat before he could complete what he had to say. Mr. Devlin shouted at the top of his voice, population of Palestine in the year hoarse with passion, throughout the pande-

War Is Peace

By Anthony Lewis

ONDON.-George Orwell could not have improved on Defense Secretary Laird'e phrasing in the announcement of renewed American bombing in North Vietnam. There was not even any "bombing" in it—just "protective reac-tion strikes." They had been made against "missile and anti-alreraft gun sites and related facilities" in response to "attacks on our unarmed reconnaissance planes." It all sounded so clean and just.

But of course bombing is not The U.S. Air Force accounts of bombing military targets in North Vietnam between 1965 and 1968 sounded surgically precise. But not very surprisingly, many of the bombs turned out to have hit non-military buildings and killed civilians.

Nor is the ground for retaliation so clear. Those "unarmed" American reconnaissance planes are escorted by others armed with rockets, cannon and bombs. It does not seem altogether astonishing that North Vietnam should object to such overflights.

The American claim, consistentdenied by the enemy, is that the Vietnamese agreed to the reconnaissance in 1968 in return for suspension of the bombing. Did they agree to almost daily overflights of that kind?

A Grain of Salt

There is bound to be skepticism the new bombing did not go north of the 19th Parallel An American wants to believe assurances by his would not fly close-support missions in Cambodia and then blandly proceeded to do so.

Retaliation may not, indeed, be the real reason for the renewed bombing raids, or the only one. Reports from Washington say a prims military aim was to hit at stockpiles of supplies ready to move

Why should any of this bother us? Isn't it natural to bomb enemy supplies? · What difference does it make if the nature and purpose of an American military action are covered by Orwellian New-

The capacity of Americans to react to events in Vietnam does seem to be at a point of exhaustion. Even the most concerned have a limit to their emotions and to their hope of affecting events. Our feelings have been numbed by all the lying and killing on both sides in Vietnam.

But the bombing episode has disturbing implications apart from any arousing of moral ardor. It indicates once again that President Nixon's goal in Vietnam is not a political settlement but military victory by another name.

Switch in Strategy?

The President has slowly but persistently been withdrawing American troops—a policy for which he will deserve the praise of history no matter what other blots there may be in Vietnam. But he has also warned against defeat or "humiliation." The puzzling question has been how he expected to withdraw and win at the same time.

The sudden, massive air attacks on North Vietnam suggest what Nixon may have in mind. As U.S. ground combat troops disappear he may count on big air strikesall over Indochina and for an indefinite period-to keep Communists off balance while Saicon'e forces carry the burden of the ground war.

But that is a recipe not for peace but for indefinite war. It would require huge American installations and expenditures for uncountable years, as well as the maintenance of South Vietnam as

Dolci's Achievement

I have just seen a letter by Thore A week or two ago I visited Doici once again, with several wellinformed companions, and we were all impressed anew by his achievements and his continuing energy and originality. He certainly showed no sign of having received any "coup de grâce" at all, either six years ago or more recently. Certainly it happens that groups of people do from time to time feel oppressed end leave; it happens everywhere in pioneer work where there is little money and where depends on one bighly original and sometimes disconcerting talent. Dolci was never so stupid as to suppose that he could "lift people out of their misery" by his own efforts or in any short space of time; be has tried to demonstrate, to my mind effectively, the means, methods and spirit by which people can eventually lift themselves out of their misery. Many of the actions he promoted are now independent and flourishing, while the people of the area are noticeably less miserable then when he entered the scene in 1952; the improvement of course has various origins, but the work of Dolci is certainly one of

Arab Refugees

In his letter on the Palestinian refugee problem (Nov. 191, Mr. D.G. Littman misses the point altogether. The plight of the refugees from Palestine could not be dismissed as "an exchange of population in the bitter 20th-century style." The problem of the Palestinians does not involve the question of settling or resettling group of individuals or a mere handful of refugees, but the fate of two million people—a whole nation in exile. Mr. Littman's figure of half a million, given as the number of refugees who fled De Gaulle dissembled he looked as their bomeland in 1948, is erroneous. Official sources of the British Mandate government report the 1937 at 1,300,000, of which a very minor percentage were Jewish immigrants. Except for 9 percent, the whole indigenous people of Pales-tine became refugees in 1948. Estimates made by the United Nations Relief and Works Agency verify these numbers.

Mr. Littman's attempt to equate the expulsion of the Palestinians from their ancient homeland with the recent emigration of Jews out of Arab countries is surely not as simple or equitable as be makes it. How would German Jews feel if denied restitution because they had been "swapped" for German refugees from the Sudetenland? Also, one cannot argue with a Palestinian who objects to the simplistic notion that he should accept being "exchanged" as someone Israel did not want for someone else it did. One nprooting cannot justify another.

The Very Model of a Marshal

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON-Long ago, I suggested that no one could tell what Soviet marshals thought but you could at least tell how they looked-which is like Gen. Curtis E. LeMay carried to the third power. Now, however, it is also possible to tell a little of the way they think, because of the testimony of the very high-level Czecho-slovak military defector, Gen-Jan grossly disproportionate.

It is important to know how Soviet marshals think, too, because of a key fact in the Sejna testimony. In 1967, the Soviet military leaders were in fact able to defy the civilian party bosses of the theoretically ruling Soviet Presidium, and thus to force the appointment of Marshal Andrel A. Grechko es the new Soviet defense minister...

Marshal Grechko is still on the job. And Gen. Sejna'e testimony is doubly valuable, precisely because he had so many opportunities to observe Marshal Grechko in action, when the latter was Warsaw Pact commander from July, 1960, to April 13, 1967.

The results are not exactly reassuring. At the Warsaw Pact meetings (which Sejna regularly attended) Marshal Grechko freely admitted that a general war was undesirable until the Soviets had a decisive lead in nuclear weapons. But he also promised that the So-vists would achieve such a lead by 1980, at the very latest,

At the fairly alcoholic feasts that followed the formal meetings, Marshal Grechko was given to boasting about what would happen when this decisive Soviet lead was finally attained. The Americans, he would say, "would get their orders, and if the U.S. was obstinate, the U.S. would then be de-

Telling the Troops

A large discount must obviously be made, here, for a Soviet marshal's idea of the right stuff to feed the satellite troops. Even so, one is impressed by the strong indication that the Soviet military leaders genuinely believe in the possibility, so often denied in this country, of a truly decisive nuclearstrategic lead.

He is unlikely, therefore, to have taken any of them into his inmost confidence. Hence the instances of this contempt, also from the Seina testimony, are probably more significant than anything else.

One instance concerned a holfday in Prague taken by Marshal Grechko and his family. To please Grechko, President Novotny ordered his country villa, I ani, to be specially statied as a vacation retreat for the great man. A banquet was prepared. A picked welcoming committee, including Gen. Sejna, was waiting on the steps of Lani when three limousines, carrying the Warsaw Pact commander and his party, swept up before the villa

A Late Sleeper.

Only Marshal Grechko troubled to leave the first car. The welcoming committee eagerly told him all that had been done to make his stay at Lani pleasant. He answered with just me word: "Good." Then he got back into his big car, returned to Prague with his party, and never bothered to see Lani again

As for instance Number Two, it is a rather long story which must be compressed here. Briefly, Marshal Grechko ordered a breakfast conference at 8 a.m. at a Warsaw

DINING OUT IN PARIS.

Trying to Recapture a Reputation

By Jon Winroth

DARIS.-Until a few years ago, Le Petit Bedon was generally rated as one of the finest restaurants in Paris. At its highest point, it had two Michelin stars, some of the highest prices going and Bernard Collot as its owner.

Mr. Collot sold the restaurant four years ago and -as the restaurant changed hands two more times—the Michelin has studiously avoided any recommendation of Le Petit Bedon.

The present owner was a snack bar manager at various American and Canadian Army bases, and might seem to be all that was needed to finish off the restaurant for good.

On the contrary, Paul Delaittre is determined to try to reestablish Le Petit Bedon's reputation. His chef is Jacques Tiec, a slight, shy man of talent who worked with Mr. Collot in his days of glory and today prepares the same specialties even as he adds new dishes. Some of the elite chentele is eappearing—Rothschilds, Alfred Hitchcock-and while Le Petit Bedon is still far from being one of the capital's very best restaurants, it does seem to be headed once more for the stars.

Huitres de Belon au champagne are one of the better specialties. A sauce made of the juice of the oysters, champagne, cream, butter, shallots and lemon juice is poured hot over the raw oysters, which lose none of their delicacy or taste is omelette cur queues d'ecrerisses, in which the omelet is stuffed with crayfish tails end served with a sauce americaine made from the shells. The duck's liver cooked with apples inside eluminum foil (joie de canard chaud en papillotte) is also worth trying.

Another delicious opening dish

In this season the menu lists a number of game preparations There are partridges and pheasants. woodcock and snipe, roebuck, hare, fillets of young boar with obestnuts and airelles (something like cranberries) and wild mallard with green pepper-

A new dish introduced only a few days ago by the chef is caneton à l'ananas (duckling with pineapple). When the duck is half roasted, it is degreased and flamed with kirsch. Cook ing is finished in pineapple juice and yeal stock. After further degreasing, caramelized sugar, a trickle of vinegar and butter are added to the sauce. Surrounded by pineapple sections the nuck comes out perfectly tender and not at all too

While the crépes are rather uninteresting, the frozen souffle Rothschild is excellent, as is "Le Petit Bedon," cherrles flam-ed in kirsch and poured hot over vanilla ice cream. Wine List

'The Underground (Press) Is Everywhere'

By John Walker

LONDON.-John Wilcock is emerging from the under-ground. Not, like older radicals, coming up for air, but testing to see if the atmosphere above is fit for him to flourish as a remarkably independent editor and publisher.

Last month, he relaunched as a magazine with a printing run of 150,000 copies his "Other Scenes," which has existed for four years mainly as a subscription-only newsletter of art and revolution. It is the first at-tempt to sell in Europe and America a magazine that makes no compromise in content to mass tastes or Madison Avenue preconceptions. Success at a time when many middle-brow publications are running into trouble could have far-reaching

"Already, the underground press is doing things that sell says. "The rock papers and the ser papers are both commercial ventures that sprang; from the underground and are now becoming mass media. We operate on the basis that advertis-. ing is not essential, that we can make a profit without it. As we succeed, so big publishing combines will cony us."

Distributor Lost Over the past 14 years Mr. Wilcock, a stocky 42, has become one of the founding fathers of underground journalism and the single greatest influence on the style of youthful newspapers across the world. At the moment, it is touch-and-go whether "Other Scenes" will make the breakout. With this month's issue, the second, Mr. Wilcock has lost his distributor. "He said that we were too controversial and that the contents offended the local distributors," he says.

What were they objecting to? Was it excerpts from George Orwell's "1984" headlined: "Why the State Digs War?" Or praise for the radical doctors opposed to AMA attitudes? . It couldn't have heen Gregory Battcock's discussion of Andy Warhol as the Fidel Castro of art, could Or the suggestion that the CIA controls Europe's heroin trade from a center in Greece?

He does not know. The contents lived up to his formula for success: "pot, art, politics, religion, sex, sociology and revolution." More hip than hip-pie, in his hattered hat (bearing an ambiguous hutton: John Wilcock Takes Trips), tweed jacket, and sandals, he has the centric rather than an apocalyptic underground hero.

From Fleet Street

Born in Britain, Mr. Wilcock was a Fleet Street reporter before arriving in New York, where he belped found "The Villege Voice" and became its first news editor. Since then, he has edited New York's widely copied "East Village Other" and the "Los Angeles Free Press," besides putting out his own newspaper and writing a column that pops up in papers from London to Tokyo.

He once said that his ambition was to know everybody and introduce them to each other, something he comes near to echieving in his globe-trotting as a travel writer, producing $5and-$10-a-day books on such countries as India, Mexico and Japan. But he always returns to New York. "America is such vibrant country," he says. "It still has the pioneer tradition of people coming and doing things for themselves. It has the most freedom as well as the most fantastic repression. But I believe that the freedom quotient is so strong that it will always win, because America is the wave of the world, still where the action is."

Even so, he feels he is part of a supra-national movement. "The underground is everywhere. I see my magazine as a hip compendium of the newest and best work being done by artists and writers all over the world. My readers are part of a worldwide conspiracy whose fellows comprise some of the most creative people alive. It is becoming less relevant what one's own country is doing and saving."

His next aim is a new New York daily paper. "What we call the underground is now the life-style of everyone I know," he says. "In advertising terms, there's a whole market to be tapped. I could start a daily with just $50,000, linked to London and the West Coast by telex. Even if I don't do it. E0011."

French Novelist Wins His Second Major Award

PARIS, Nov. 23.-Michel Tournier, 46, today won France's top literary award, the Goncourt prize, for his second novel, "Le Roi des Aulnes" (The King of the Alders). This is his second major literary award. In 1967, he won the grand prize of the French Academy for his first book, "Vendredi ou les Limbes du Pacifique" (Priday or the Limbo of the Pacific).

Established in the 19th century under the will of Edmond de Goncourt, the prize is worth only 50 francs (just under $5) but the prestige of the award assures large-scale circulation. What every investor needs to know about his broker.

Seven vital questions and how they are answered by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., the world's largest stock and commodities broker

What is the calibre of my investment representative? Only one in ten of those who apply to Merrill Lynch are accepted. Each undergoes a rigorous 7 month training programme including 3½ months at New York Headquarters, Total cost about $20,000.00 each. The result—a high degree of competence

2 Does he depend wholly on commission? No. Every Merrill Lynch investment representative receives a salary. He may get a bonus, but it is not based on a flat percentage of sales. If he thinks you shouldn't buy he can afford to say so. The salary is always there.

3 How is my account supervised? Each Merrill Lynch office has its manager whose job is to assist and guide his staff-not to sell. Except in a very few small offices our managers do not handle accounts. There are other checks too. Frequent visits by top management are standard policy. Another example is the daily stock watch-a computerised system that alerts management whenever an office trades more than 1000 shares of a particular stock in one day, if the stock in question doesn't have the approval of the research division the manager must explain why he felt the transactions were in the best interest of the customers.

How objective is the Lynch separates securities Recommendations are based: strictly on the quality of a security, not its saleability. Example—if Merrill Lynch investment bankers want to underwrite the stock of a company they must first receive approval from the research division.

Do you make markets ? Merrill Lynch is a major international market maker and underwriter of investment securities. If we self you a security we have underwritten, we will buy it back at any time, at the market price.

is customer service. growing or stagnant ? Since January 1969, Merrill Lynch has invested over $100 m. in improving customer service, This ... includes $15 m. to open new offices (including three in Europe), $27 m. on training and $10 m. to develop new computer systems;

What is your financial position? The capital position of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Int. is more than double the amount needed to meet New York Stock Exchange requirements. At the end o September 1970 total asse were $1,856,557,035. Net capital was $277,159,898. Net income for the first 9 months of the year $20,245,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (WP) .-There is one subject that has been lost in the current furor over commission rates, brokerage failures, and a new chairman for the Securities and Ex-change Commission: What is happening-or likely to happen

a number of analysts and fund managers, along with a reading of current market letters, fipds that, basically, the Wall Street outlook is cautiously optimistic. But there is some question about the reasons for that

There is not any expectation of another sharp drop in the market—anything that would carry the Dow Jones industrial average below, say, 680 or 700. At the same time, there is no great anticipation of a sharp rally-above 825 or so-over the next six to eight months. As for a return to the selad days. most analysis tend to write off that possibility, at least until the traders recover from the shocks of 1969 and 1970.

analysis say, that he will have million we're losing again."
to start no later than early next In order to handle e should be happy to anticipate the recovery. Hopefully, General Motors will be able to get back into full operation during the next few weeks removing what amounts to a stone well from the path of a recovery. Analysis concede that they see pothing in current figures to indicate that the administration is making a strong effort to stimulate the economy. And some say they are not looking so much for an improvement in statistics as a turn in psychology—some action by the White House to start consumers thinking optimistically again. That may seem a kind of tenu-ous thread, but there it is.

Losing Again One of the chief problems mitigating against any strong rally, not surprisingly, is the state of the Street itself. While much has been made of the fear that the brokers would not be able to withstand another market break it is just as likely that they could not support a bigvolume rally.

As one institutional englyst put it: "At 8 million shares a day we lose money, at 10 mil-have the electorate smiling in lien we break even, at 15 mil-November, 1872. That means, the lien we make money and at 20 In order to handle e busy. year, and the stock market railying market, the brokers need capital, and that is a commodity that has become rather scarce in Wall Street. So, the analysts see a relatively flat movement to the market for possibly the next six to eight months. They are hopeful that the rest will give the brokers time to regroup, get the balance sheets in line, rebuild some of the capacity shorn from the back offices during the financial crunch, and be ready to handle a good market if and when it does

Another general feeling—it is almost a reflex action after any had market break-is that the next rally will be based on better-quality stocks. If the administration really starts pumping and the economy responds, cyclical stocks such as steels and heavy equipment makers could benefit. But while conglomerates and other erstwhile high flyers may attract trading ection, analysts do not see those issues scoring any lasting gains.

There is another school of thinking that feels that, since this outlook is so generally accepted, it must be wrong. But that is another story.

Building businesses is our business.

We don't just expand existing markets. We create new ones.

Developing markets to their full potential is one way to build businesses. Creating new markets is another. At Tenneco we do both. That's one good reason why our sales are at an all-time high—over $2,400 million last year up 318% since 1965. And we're still growing. Because we're still building-in more ways than one. For our latest annual report, write: Section 33, Public Relations Department, Tenneco Inc., P.O. Box 2511, Houston, Texas 77001, U.S.A.

ing in popularity recently among tournament players. The idea of making the strong hand the declarer, and therefore decreasing the chance of a damaging opening lead, is a good one theoretically. But in practice such maneuvers can be double-edged. In the diagramed deal, South opened at one table with one no-trump. The obvious action for North was to raise to three no-trump, but North bid three no-trump, but North bid three clubs which in the partnership style was a transfer bid showing diamond length.

Transfer bids have been grow-

As sometimes heppens, the transfer bid allowed the opponents to find a fit. East doubled three clubs, and West later bid the suit. Although they have few high-card points, East-West could have made nine tricks in a club contract.

When the bidding smoke hed eleared, South had landed in a contract of five diamonds. The transfer had successfully made the strong hand the declarer, but North-South would have been better off without such a theoretical profit. Five diamonds cannot be defeated if played from North side, but South would have falled if he had received a heart lead.

East won the lead of the club three with the ace and returned the spade jack. South won with the ace and drew trumps in two rounds. He returned to his hand with a spade lead, cashed the club king, discarding dummy's last spade, and reviewed the prospects.

West's club plays, the three followed by the two, suggested that he held five clubs. As West was known to have started with five spades and one diamond, that left him with two hearts. East therefore held five hearts, and was likely to have the king among them. South played on this assumption leading the heart three and inserting dummy's eight and inserting dummy's eight.

East won with the ten and was helpless: He had to choose between a club lead, presenting South with a ruff and discard, and a heart lead away from the king, allowing the queen in dummy to become South's 11th trick.

THE LOST CRUSADE

America in Vietnam

By Chester L. Cooper. Foreword by Ambassador \
Harriman. Dodd, Mead. 559 pp. $12.

Reviewed by Chalmers M. Roberts

IT has taken a quarter century to begin to produce definitive examinations of the origins and meanings of World War II. The same time span doubtless will be required to do the same for what most Americans call the Vietnam War but what in reality, is most likely to take its place in history as the Second Indochina War.

Books about Vietnam have hardly been in short supply thus far, but too many of them have been passionate expositions of the American effort, either proor con, and too few can claim any subtlety, let alone qualify as history. Thus it is with pleasure that one can report that Chester L. Cooper's: "The Lost Crusade" is an important contribution to the historiography of what has become America's longest and most divisive war. The sweep of Cooper's account is total—from the fullest account yet of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's aborted efforts to prevent Indochina's return to France after World War II down to President account yet of President Franklin D. Boosevelt's aborted efforts to prevent Indochina's return to France after World War II down to President Nixon's "incursion" into Cambook as history, however, is uneven; others have told much more of many past periods and it is far too soon to fix the Cambodian affair in proper context.

Where "The Lost Crusade"

where "The Lost Crusade" shines is when Mr. Cooper is writing about his own participation. He was not a principal actor but, he has been deeply involved in many_twists and turns; most especially in the ill-fated 1967 efforts of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson to do a deal with visiting Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin while a suspicious Lyndon Johnson fussed back at the White House.

Mr. Cooper's credentials include 25 years in government service with the OSS in the China Burma India theater, with the CIA as analyst and intelligence estimetor, and attendance at both the 1954 'Geneva and 1962 Laos conferences plus the SEATO founding conference of 1954. He was on the National Security Council planning board, was an Asian affairs alde to McGeorge Bundy in the White House and, to cap it, was an assistant to W. Averell Harriman during Harriman's period as Lyndon Johnson's Vietnam peace negotiator.

He went into Vietnam's hawk' and emerged years later a dove, but he denies such an oversimplification though his shift of views is evident enough. He came out with "no nostrums and no ready answers" but with a clear belief that "the ruits of Vietnam (win, lose or draw) are likely to be sour." And like many others he concludes, with some hope, that perhaps this bitter experience will teach Americans that their foreign policy will have to be based more on an reason and self-int to emotion and rigi and thus perhaps crusade "may provid something of value Maybe. Yet what ingly clear from r. Mr. Cooper's book false starts and aborto find a way to

Irish Aim for Rematch With Texas

By Neil Amdur

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (NYT). Gambling that its choice would produce college football's version of the Super Bowl, Notre Dame accepted an invitation yesterday to return to the Cotton Bowl in Dallas on New Year's day.

Bnt unbeaten Dartmouth headed for a No. 1 ranking and trophy as the East's top team turned down a challenge from Penn State for a post-season pairing to decide sectional su-

Hours after Joe Paterno, the Penn State coach, had challenged the Ivy League champion to play Dec. 5, Seaver Peters, Dartmouth athletic director quickly scuttled further speculation of an Eastern title game,

"The Ivy League rules would make it impossible to face Penn State this season," Peters said. "I think that Penn State is trying to salvage the Lambert Trophy,"

Notre Dame, which won its ninth straight game last Satur-day, 3-0, over Louisiana State, voted overwhelmingly as a team to play in the Cotton Bowl. But the Irish must swait the outcome of the Dec. 5 game be-tween Texas and Arkansas to learn who the opponent will be, Obviously, Notre Dame players are hoping for a Texas victory and a rematch with the Longhorns, defending national champion, currently No. 1 in the polls. In selecting the Cotton Bowl, the Irish shunned an opportu-nity to meet a known opponent, unbeaten once-tied Nebraska, in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night. Notre Dame's decision also stunned Orange Bowl committeemen, who privately felt that they had a "75 percent chance" of landing the Irish. However, the selectors in Mismi announced last night that Lousiana State had been invited to play Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, but with a provision. The Tigers must win their two remaining games. The first is against Tulane next Saturday and the second with Mississippl on Dec. 5. The committee said that if LSU failed to win, the situation would have to be reas-sessed on the basis of which teams were evailable.

One team that had lost support in recent weeks, Ohio State, moved boldly back into the bowl and poll picture with an impressive 20-9 triumph over previously unbeaten Michigan. One coach who thought the Buckeyes, now 9-0 and set to oppose Stanford in the Rose Bowl, deserved top billing was Woody Hayes, their coach, who enhanced his already-flamboyant reputation with a reversal of his 1969 loss to the Wol-biggest victory, because it makes up for last year," said Haves. who spoke only of Michigan as "that team" in pre-game plans. This victory proves to our seniors that this is the greatest team we've ever had here."

Does Ohio State deserve to be ranked No. 1? Hayes said, "You're damned right."

It was not a safe weekend for many bowl teams. Colorado gained 357 yards rushing in the first half and humbled Air Force, a Sugar Bowl selection, 49-19. California dealt Stanford its second successive defeat and third of the season, 22-14, as Dave Penhall upstaged the Indians' Jim Plunkett at quar-terback. He had 18 pass completions in 26 attempts for 231 In two other West Coast surprises, Long Beach State snapped San Diego State's 31-game unbeaten string, 27-11, and Den-nis Dummit threw three touchdown passes in a 45-20 victory for University of California, Los Angeles, over Southern Cal, its city rival.

For many coaches, the last major weekend of the season may be their finale before the dismissal news arrives. But for Dr. Novice Fawcett of Ohio State, victory never seemed so

"The world wouldn't have come to an end if the Buckeyes lost," Fawcett was told. "Perhaps not," the school president said, "But it will be a lot better rlace to live since we

No Knock-No Flush

WASHINGTON. - There was w a shoot-out in Phoenix last week which has national implications. The police, taking advantage of a "no knock" law, raided a house where they suspected hippies had narcotics. Unfortunately, at the time of

Unfortunately, the raid the moved out and a married couple had moved in. Since the raid took place at one-thirty in the morning. the hushand refused to believe the men were police and shot one .. he in turn was shot. The police sergeant said after the raid: "It was a misunderstanding. The couple prohably felt they were defending their home against some hippies. Rnd the officers thought they were fighting some crimi-

Now, opponents of the "no knock" law have always claimed the hig danger of it was that if the police enter someone's home without knocking, they could get shot.

Since the Constitution permits you to detend your own home, it is possible that more policemen will be shot than narcotics will be found.

This will make the cops uptight, and so, to protect themaelves, they'll start shooting first and before you know it. there will be bloodbaths all over the country.

The reason law enforcement officials say they need the 'no knock" law is that if they

Gregory Peck Gets 'Achievement' Award

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23 (UPI). -Gregory Peck received the Screeo Actors Guild annual award yesterday "for outstand-iog achievement in fostering the ideals of the acting professloo" at the organization's annual membership pieeting.

The presentation was made to Mr. Peck by Charlton Heston. who was installed for a slath one-year term as president of knock first, the suspects inside the bouse will flush narcotics evideoce down the toilet, Only a strong "no knock" law, they claim, can prevent anyone from dashing to the bathroom.

This sounds reasonable hut, as we have seen in Phoenix, it can only lead to a shoot-out. because the people inside the house can never be certain that the people crashing into their home are policemen.

There is a solution to this problem which we think could satisfy the law-and-order people as well as the innocent homeowner.

I am proposing that the "no knock" law he stricken from the books and replaced with a "no flush" law,

This is how it would work: the police would still have to get a warrant to enter some-one's home. They would also have to knock before entering. But if it were a narcotics or gambling raid, they would have to shout at the top of their voices: THIS IS A RAID. ANYONE WHO FLUSHES THE TOILET WILL BE AR-RESTED."

One policeman would be sta-tioned by the water meter nearest the house or apartment to monitor any fluctuation in water pressure during the raid.

When the police enter the apartment, they will have the authority to check the hathrooms. If anyone flushes dur-ing the raid, he will be assumed to have committed a crime, and this evidence will be accepted by the court as prima facie evidence of guilt. The "no flush" law may be considered by civil libertarians as an invasion of privacy, hut it is certainly more acceptable thau a "no knock" law, and safer too. I made this suggestion at the annual meeting of the Americao Bar Association in St. Louis in a speech last summer. But they only laughed at me. So I've decided to take my case to the public. Would you rather have the police crash in on you at one o'clock in the morning without warning, or would you rather first hear a knock oo the door and give up your bathroom privileges while they're searching through your

Michaelis is the boxing promoter for the Paixis des Sports, the major indoor sports showcase in Paris. He finds two men willing to hit each other, puts them in a ring and hopes that the fighters are popular enough to fill the 5,000 seats of is theoretically an every-other-Monday affair. The first bouts were held several days before the Maurice Béjart-directed

Paris Opéra Fallet arrived on the scene. The ballet's regular home, the Paris Opéra, is closed for repairs, as it will be for the 1971 ballet season. The ballet will

"But the ballet likes the idea of coming to a big hall," said Michaelis, "It even draws a different crowd. A lot of young-challenger.

Michaelis said. "I like to see the champions in each thing." The second fight card was Nov. 16—the day after Stravinsky's "Firebird" closed the ballet—and four days before the Red Army Chorus and dancers invaded, The bout, hetween René Roque, European welterweight champion from France, and French challenger Roger Zami, had been scheduled for Monday, Oct. 30—when the ballet had a day off.

Roque is one of the top-drawing fighters in France. So Michaelis knew he could sell out all 5,000 seats. Except, with the king-sized stage necessary for Bejart, there were now only 4,200 seats in the house. And the 800 seats taken out were all at ringside. Charley's been around 25 years as promoter. He postponed the bout until Monday, Nov. 16. It was a sellout and the gate was $54,000, one of the biggest in France for indoor boxing. Decorating the arena in their grand style were elegant Yul Brynner, French actors Claude Brasseur and Jean Gahin, and troops of others who might well have thought they would be seeing a Bejart performance that night.

The melange of opera, ballet, hoxing, ice shows, rodeos, singers and Harlem Globelrotters has caused confusion. Michaelis, sitting in his first-floor office, back of hackstage, said, "A lot of people doo't know about the day off on Monday, sometimes for the ballet or Red Army.

"And it has happened that people have come here for the opera and instead they find a boxing match. Sometimes they stay." It must be nice for boxers to near "Bravissimo." But when they've been fighting and flailing away for 30 minutes and finally thank God for hearing the bell for the last round and some smarty pants yells, "Encore," it's enough to make a man dance.

Whenever the Red Army Chorus is in the palais, they want to attend the bonts and Michaelis finds a place in the corner for them. In fact, Charley last week had constant contact with the Red Army. When he was talking on the phone, he had to speak louder than the strum of balalakas and the roar of tubas and the pounding feet of the Cossack women, Michaelis is a calm man and takes everything in step. He is used to changes. Born in New York City in 1910, he came to France with his parents in 1914. He was an amateur boxer and started earning a living working for a photo agency in France, During World, War II, he rose to captain in the U.S. Army and on his office wall is a picture of young Capt. Michaelis with a French officer. Both are sitting in a jeep with women gathered about. Written in chalk on the auto's fender is "Bonjour La France Libre." The photo was taken on Boulevard St.-Germain on Aug. 25, 1944—the day Paris was liberated.

Michaelis stayed in Paris after the war, and, besides hoxing, promoted such hap-penings as the demolition derby and a rodeo. ("Never again a rodeo. The crowd didn't understand it. They laughed at the most tragic moment, when the cowboy fell off the horse"). ..

But boxing is Charley. "I love the sport when the fight is good," he said. The next card is Nov. 30.

The palais will soon be trying to get the Walt Disney on Parade show and if it does come, Charley hopes that it won't be there on Monday nights. If it is, you may soon see the fight of the century-Mickey Mouse vs. Donald Duck. Charley Michaelis knows a good drawing card when he sees it.
